Sophie Gelinet and Cédric Gepner never received formal training in furniture design. However, chance and a shared desire to collaborate led the couple to create their first lamp, which became the foundation of their initial collection and eventually led to the establishment of Studio HAOS in 2017.

Convinced that the beauty of design holds greater power in modesty, Studio HAOS has since pursued that particular form of elegance that lies in the ability to express or evoke emotions with restraint and deliberately limited means. Originally from Paris, the duo relocated to Lisbon to set up a large-scale workshop where design, prototyping, and production occur side by side. In this space, they experiment with ways to elevate humble materials, crafting thoughtful objects and structures that carve a path distinct from both mass-produced mechanization and opulent craftsmanship. Named among Architectural Digest's top 100 most influential creatives since 2020, Studio HAOS is represented by galleries in New York, Miami, London, and Antwerp.
